Shore could not control the ball as he had done earlier in the game and hit Cutshaw. Mowrey arose to the occasion with a bounder which Janvrin could not handle and Stengel and Wheat crossed the plate, while the Boston fans began to move uneasily in their seats. Their fears grew when Olson beat out an infield hit and they were scarcely relieved when Chief Meyers fouled out.

third.

The ball left Cutshaw's bat as if undecided where it was going and Hooper had to sprint well over toward the foul line just back of first base before he could get his hands on it. The he could get his hands on it. The effort/caused him to slip to the turf in a sitting position, but he was up like a flash and while still rising hurled the ball straight as a bullet to Cady. The latter slammed it on Wheat's ankle as he reached for the plate with his foot at the end of a perfect hook slide.

This thrilling catch and throw and the ninth inning rally of the van-quished Brooklyn team were the out-standing feature of the first game of the series which attracted a gathering of baseball followers that num-bered 36,117 and paid into the coffers of the world's series fund $76,489,50. Neither the attendance nor the receipts Neither the attendance nor the roceipts equal the day of a year ago when 42,300 spectators witnessed virtually the same team defeat the Philadel-phias 2 to 1 in the third game of that series, but tonight the playors are richer by $11,304.33 while the clubs each have $13,768.11 and the National Commission $7,648,95 to add to their several bank accounts.

There was little evidence of this control of the contro tion upon their features while the junior league champions romped inrough their National League rivals to a lead of six to one.

With the game apparently packed away in their bat bag, the Carrigan clan began to wobble, led by Pitcher Ernest Shore, and amassed four tallies and appeared upon the verge of wresting the initial game away from the American leaguers.

This surprising break, of which the invading team from greater New York wah quick to take advantage, was the feature of an

Before the threatening rush of the Superbas developed in their final turn at bat, the contest appeared to indicate that the Boston players would swing through an easy conquest, and the startling break in the steady work of the local club furnished the thrill into defeat.

When Daubert, the first Brooklyn batsman, stepped to the plate in the opening half of the ninth inning, the spectators were beginning to leave the Braves' field, but they halted in their tracks as Shore passed the Superbas captain, and Casey Stengel sent him to second with a clean single. A lone Brooklyn rooter began to beat upon a tin pan and here and there were cries of encouragement for the National League champions, but the cheers died away as Wheat forced Daubert at third.

Shore could not control the ball as he had done earlier in the Shore could not control the ball as he had done earlier in the second with a clean single. Daubert struck out on three pitched balls and Stentheir seats. Their fears grew when Olson beat out an infield hit and they were scarcely relieved when Chief Meyers fouled out. Merkle, batting for Pfeffer, waited Shore out and walked, forcing in Cutshaw with the third run of the inning. There was not a sound from the thousands when Manager Carrigan ordered Shore from the box and substituted Mays.

Myers, Brooklyn's lead off batter, scratched an infield hit, scoring Mowrey, and the Nationals were within a run of tying the score with the bases still loaded.

Daubert came to the plate for the second time in the inning and every one of the thousands of spectators held their breath as the Brooklyn captain hit an ugly bounder to Scott. The shortstop speared the ball as it leaped from the turf and without pausing even to sight, whipped it to Hoblitzell.
